LunaJets recognised as best employer by Swiss magazine Bilan for second year running

LunaJets was named “Best Employer 2019 in Switzerland” (in the category of small companies under 70 employees) by the Swiss financial and economical magazine Bilan (10 April 2019 issue). The article focuses on best Human Resources practices in eleven different categories. Bilan has published this ranking for eleven years and evaluated over 100 companywide criteria in this year’s study.

LunaJets has now received the recognition of “Best Employer” two years in a row (2018 and 2019) and is the only company in the aviation industry to have ever won this award (VERIFY).

LunaJets CEO, Eymeric Segard, reacts to the magazine’s recognition, “It is great to receive this award from Bilan for the second time and a true testimony to how much we value the team’s efforts. This award calls on us to continue challenging ourselves to be even more innovative, and we will continue to implement new employee benefits in order to maintain enthusiasm and loyalty. A fulfilled employee delivers better service.”

Exceptional Employee Benefits

The exceptional benefits offered to every single LunaJets’ employee is the primary reason for the private jet charter company to have won this award.

LunaJets provides its employees with: training and development, flexible hours to maintain a work-life balance, unlimited vacation days, monthly massages by a professional masseuse, as well as a pet friendly office. Employees also have access to a fully equipped gym, company car, and a kitchen stocked with snacks, fresh fruits and smoothies in unlimited quantity.

This year some of the new employee benefits include the visit of a hairdresser on the office premises every six weeks, fun go karting evenings, free Pilates and crossfit classes, as well as a three-day company ski retreat in Chamonix for team building and relaxation.

LunaJets Director of Business Development & Sales, Alain Leboursier, states: “We are extremely pleased to receive this award which also serves as a great recruiting tool to motivate candidates. Although our outstanding company practices are a given to us, it’s nice to receive this recognition from external professionals.”
